

Debaters Association of Victoria Teacher Inservice 2017

A professional development program for teachers and debating coordinators

Wednesday February 22nd
Stamford Plaza, 111 Little Collins St, Melbourne

Debating promotes confidence in oral presentation and teaches structured argument and analysis—skills essential far beyond debating itself. Through debating, students can learn how to work in a team and to argue with confidence and precision. Debating also encourages awareness about the world at large as students grapple with challenging issues.

The Debaters Association of Victoria's Teacher Inservice is an excellent opportunity to learn about debating and to develop the skills to pass this knowledge on to students in classrooms, or coach them to success in competitions. The Inservice will provide an array of useful hints, practical tips, activities, real life applications, and examples.

Who should attend?

Debating coordinators, English teachers, librarians, team coaches and anyone interested in debating.

The Program will include:

- A discussion of the benefits of debating;
 - Adjudicator's advice on how to prepare and present a case;
 - An exhibition debate and discussion on this debate;
 - Tips on how to adjudicate debates and coach a debating team; and
 - Seminars on dealing with definitional debates, secret topics and using rebuttal to win debates.
- You will also receive a comprehensive set of materials to use throughout the year.

What Previous Participants Say...

The DAV has run similar Inservices since 2003. Teachers from Government, Catholic, and independent schools across Victoria have attended. Some teachers had not seen a debate; others had been involved in debating for decades. Here are some typical comments from those teachers:

"One of the best PD days that I have ever attended. It was very useful and interesting with practical advice on how to conduct debates in school"

"I was extremely impressed by this PD—it was informative, helpful, thought-provoking and well planned. I can't praise it enough!"

"An open and practical session that gave good advice and illuminated some aspects of the mysteries of adjudication"

"Very informative and interesting—As a first year coordinator I feel it's a critical intro into DAV debating"

Sessions and Presenters

Introduction to Debating

A beginners' guide to the aims, benefits and rules of debating. This session will cover the format of 3 vs. 3 debating, including the rules of debate, speaker roles and assessment criteria. It will also provide resources and activities for teachers to use to assist students to develop the basic skills involved in preparing and presenting an argument.

Principles of Adjudication

The adjudication sessions will teach how to judge debates in a fair and consistent fashion and will focus on the three key criteria which adjudicators use in deciding debates: manner, matter and method. By explaining the criteria adjudicators use to judge a debate, the session aims to aid staff in understanding what is required of students. This will ensure that they can make the most of the feedback they are given by adjudicators. We will also cover the exhibition debate, scoring and definitions, and any queries or questions raised by participants in the session.

Advanced Debating Strategy

This session aims to extend on previous debating knowledge. It will look at advanced research techniques and present ideas for enhancing rebuttal. As well as looking at how to improve presentation, we will also examine the principles involved in building a case – hard/soft lines, use of models, and winning definitional debates.

Exhibition Debate

As well as the four training sessions, we will screen an exhibition debate featuring adult members of the DAV. This will provide staff with the opportunity to see a high quality debate and raise any questions or comments they might have on the three key criteria (manner, matter and method), case structure and different styles of debating. The debate will be a particularly useful point of discussion for the sessions that will follow and provide staff a good point of reference for understanding the basics of debating as well as both adjudications and advanced debating strategies.
